The revolver is nominally .41 caliber (or 10.5 mm if you prefer) with the bore measuring about 10.5mm land to land and 11mm groove to groove. The chamber mouths measure closer to 12mm. Much like the Lefaucheux pinfire system, this no doubt results in some disagreement about the caliber of the revolver. As most period cartridge revolvers were referred to by the diameter of the casing, rather than the bore diameter

Manufacturer

- "Palmetto" or "Palmetto Brescia, Italy" or "Made in Italy by Palmetto" and/or the "Palmetto Arms/Palmetto di Mainardi" logo of a "palm tree within a circle" is usually marked on the firearm.

- "PALMETTO" name has been used by several manufacturers.
- "PALMETTO ARMORY", the original government Armory was located in Columbia, South Carolina, between 1851 and 1865. Palmetto Armory produced cannon, swords, Model 1842 percussion pistols, Model 1841 percussion rifles, and Model 1842 percussion rifles (conversions of 1816 muskets) for the federal government prior to the U.S. Civil War. Palmetto Armory was used by the Confederacy to build their own versions of these firearms after hostilities started. Palmetto Armory was destroyed by General Sherman's troops as they advanced into South Carolina in 1865. Palmetto Armory's logo was a palm tree surrounded by the words "PALMETTO.ARMORY", over "S*C".
- "PALMETTO ARMORY" was used by a private manufacturer of AR-15-style rifles during the late 1970s and early 1980's. Palmetto Armory built rifles on receivers supplied to them by Scheutzen Gun Works / SGW (of Washington; later to become part of Olympic Arms) and by Essential Arms of Krotz Springs, Louisiana. In both cases, rifles were marked with BOTH the original supplier of the receiver/frame and the logo of Palmetto Armory. Palmetto Armory logo consists of a two ring (lifebouy) crest with the words "PALMETTO" at the top and "ARMORY" at the bottom with a "palm tree" inside the inner ring.
- "PALMETTO ARMS" was a trade name used on shotguns produced by Crescent Firearms, Davenport, Hopkins & Allen, and Stevens.
- "PALMETTO ARMS / PALMETTO DI MAINARDI" was located in Brescia, Italy. Palmetto Arms / Palmetto di Mainardi specialized in manufacturing modern reproductions of black-powder and Civil War-era firearms. Palmetto Arms / Palmetto di Mainardi took its name from the original "Palmetto Armory" (Columbia, South Carolina) which was destroyed at the end of the U.S. Civil War. Palmetto Arms / Palmetto di Mainardi logo consists of a "palm tree within a circle".
- "PALMETTO STATE ARMORY" is located in Columbia, South Carolina, U.S.A. "Palmetto State Armory" logo consists of two crossed canon with piled canon ball at their top centre and a caption banner going across with "PALMETTO" over "STATE ARMORY". Palmetto State Armory was established in 2008.

Palmetto Armory was used by the Confederacy to build their own versions of these firearms after hostilities started. - "PALMETTO ARMORY" was used by a private manufacturer of AR-15-style rifles during the late 1970s and early 1980's. Palmetto Armory built rifles on receivers supplied to them by Scheutzen Gun Works / SGW (of Washington; later to become part of Olympic Arms) and by Essential Arms of Krotz Springs, Louisiana. In both cases, rifles were marked with BOTH the original supplier of the receiver/frame and the logo of Palmetto Armory. Palmetto Arms / Palmetto di Mainardi specialized in manufacturing modern reproductions of black-powder and Civil War-era firearms. Palmetto Arms / Palmetto di Mainardi took its name from the original "Palmetto Armory" (Columbia, South Carolina) which was destroyed at the end of the U.S. Civil War. Palmetto Arms / Palmetto di Mainardi logo consists of a "palm tree within a circle".
- "PALMETTO STATE ARMORY" is located in Columbia, South Carolina, U.S.A. "Palmetto State Armory" logo consists of two crossed canon with piled canon ball at their top centre and a caption banner going across with "PALMETTO" over "STATE ARMORY". Palmetto State Armory was established in 2008.

Notes

Make

- "Dominion Arms" is usually marked on the side of the firearm.
- "Dominion Arms" and "CanadaAmmo" are trade/brand names of Disco-Tech Industries, Inc. of Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

Model

- "313B" is marked on the firearm.
- Dominion Arms Model 313B appears to be a renamed copy of a Type 81 Rifle.
- Type 81 Rifle incorporates elements of the Dragunov Sniper Rifle, SKS, and AK series rifles.
- the rifle is cosmetically influenced by the Type 56 license produced AK-47, but with a SKS-like short-stroke gas-piston design and improvements to reduce the recoil and muzzle jump, giving better firing accuracy.
- Type 81 rifle retains the general layout of AK-47 but is not an improved variant of the license produced AK-47 (the Type 56); major differences include the positioning of the sights and the commercial thumb-hole stock of the rifle, the most easily distinguishable feature.
- there is a significant gap between the trigger guard and the magazine on Type 81 rifles, while on the Type 56 series the magazine is adjacent to the front of the trigger guard. The Type 81 rifle is a short-stroke gas-operated design, while the Type 56 are long-stroke designs.

Manufacturer

- manufacturer's name is not usually marked on the firearm.

Action

- gas operated.

Serial Number

- sample serial number observed consisted of a series of six numbers.

Shots

- detachable box magazine.

Canadian Law Comments

1) The Dominion Arms, Model 313B, Receiver/Frame is considered to be comprised of four parts/components:
a) the Front Trunnion/Rear Sight Block;
b) the Ejector Block;
c) the Rear Trunnion/Return Spring Catch; and,
d) the stamped steel rectangular channel portion to which the other receiver/frame components are permanently affixed by rivet and/or weld.

2) For regulatory purposes, when the receiver/frame is further disassembled, the receiver/frame component known as the Front Trunion/Rear Sight Block, where the manufacturer information and serial number are found, is used to establish the description for the purpose of firearms registration.

3) When the receiver/frame is further disassembled and reduced to its four components, the component that bears the serial number, model and factory number, (the Front Trunnion/Rear Sight Block), will be considered the Receiver/Frame.

4) The classification of this firearm as a semi-automatic firearm is based on the presumption that none of the original four (4) receiver components were reused. This is what was understood to be the meaning of the claim by the manufacturer that the firearm is a "newly manufactured semi-automatic firearm".

5) The Criminal Code PART III, Section 84 para (c) definition - prohibited firearm means, "an automatic firearm, whether or not it has been altered to discharge only one projectile with one pressure of the trigger.
